Statement response to Trump's immigration restrictions

In response to President Trump's executive order to temporarily ban the immigration of refugees and citizens from seven countries, San Diego Regional EDC has released the following statement:

"If you visit San Diego's research institutions or science and technology companies, you will find world-class talent from across the globe. Many of our greatest ideas and breakthroughs have been advanced by the contributions and dedication of immigrants, who have become part of our community. President Trump's recent immigration actions are harmful to San Diego companies and our economy, just as they are harmful to our nation as a whole." – Mark Cafferty, President & CEO, San Diego Regional Economic Development Corporation
